New Translation of the Mass — Part 10

The Creed — Part 1

After the sermon/homily, we begin the Creed. Ideally it should be sung.

I believe in one God, the Father almighty, Daniel 3.45; 1 Timothy 2.5 maker of heaven and earth. Genesis 14.19: Acts 17.24 of all things visible and invisible. Wisdom 1.14; Col 1.16; Rev 4.11

Believing is something no one else can do for you. Grammatically we might say that the verb 'to believe' is only ever uttered in the Middle Voice. If someone says, 'We believe' they mean 'I believe, and I won't tolerate opposition to my view'. So it has to be 'I believe'. The Creed begins as a personal affirmation of Faith. More than that, when all of us at Mass are saying 'I believe', we are speaking in the name of the Church. The whole Church is saving for herself. 'I believe'. The 'I' who believes is both the individual and the Church.

Christians believe in only One God. This one God has revealed Himself to be a 'threeness', i.e. a Trinity. When we think of the Trinity 'within' itself, only then can we make certain distinctions: only the Father begets the Son, and only the Son is begotten, and only the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son. Everything else the Trinity does 'outside' of itself, it does as one undivided unity.

Despite this, in our language we tend to attribute certain characteristics to each of the Persons of the Trinity. While all three Divine Persons create (and create together), we tend to speak of the Father alone as the creator, to emphasise that He is the source of the Godhead, that He begets the Son, and that the Spirit proceeds from Him and from the Son, but that the Father Himself is neither begotten nor does He proceed. Nor is there any other 'father' before Him from whom He receives His divinity. Yet we must be careful not to think that only the Father creates.

God the Trinity is the creator of all things: the heavens and the earth. By things visible we mean the physical universe, and by invisible we mean the spiritual realm — angels, souls, grace. The previous translation had 'seen and unseen', which is not a good translation. Something unseen is still visible, if only I open my eyes. Here the Creed is saying that all things are of God's making, and that they are good. God is spirit, but that does not mean only spiritual things are good. The material creation is good also, and made by the same one God.

The Newsletter of HOLY CROSS PRIORY CHURCH, LEICESTER

Serving Leicester's Catholics since AD 1247

Entrance God is the strength of his people. In him, we his chosen live in safety.

Save us, Lord, who share in your life, and give us your blessing; be our Antiphon:

shepherd for ever.

1st Reading: Zechariah 12: 10-11

Psalm Response: My soul thirsts for you, O Lord, my God. (Ps 63)

2nd Reading: Galatians 3: 26-29

Alleluia: At 11:00 – In you, O Lord, I take refuge. Let me never be put to shame.

In your justice set me free and rescue me. Hear me and speedily rescue

Otherwise – My sheep hear my voice, says the Lord; I know them and they follow me.

Luke 9: 18-24 Gospel:

Communion At 11:00 – If anyone wants to be a follower of mine, let him renounce Antiphon:

himself and take up his cross and follow me.

Otherwise either - The eyes of all look to you, O Lord, and you give them food in due season.

Or – I am the Good Shepherd; I give my life for my sheep, says the Lord.
