

TODAY'S Gospel is quite a story. We must have heard it from the person herself, a quite forward and liberated lady Jesus asks for water - He never gets. They have quite an exchange of views, about religion. He shocks her, by knowing everything about her. (He shocks His friends; by talking to a woman in the first place). It is a striking story; but is meant to be really effective if I dare put myself in the picture. Has Jesus, can I feel, asked me for something? Did I give it? Did I argue? Or make excuses? Did I feel that JESUS(!) can't, really, be talking to me? Especially, I might think, if He knew everything about me - everything! What if He does! The story goes on to show that He might very well talk to me, even if He knows it all; perhaps, especially, if He knows... I might start to get a glimpse at last of what it means that He is my 'Saviour'. All mess and shame in my life is just what He has come about. It is all just what He can do, a good deal, about. Do, far more, than I realise; until I let Him talk to me, and work on me. Then - He leaves me to work it out myself. He shows a gracious and loving trust, in me. It can shame, and inspire me. It can, strangely, do both at the same time. This is the very mysterious way He has; of doing things; or getting-things-done by me. Or - is it the same thing? I am getting us into some very dangerous theology here which has caused a lot of trouble, in the past, and split the Church into all the mess of 'churches' we are left in today. I believe, He can, and will, pull us all together. Or, is He leaving it to us, to do that? With His help? Is it the thing we all have to pray-and-work for, with Him? Last touch in the story, a good point for a preacher like me to remember always: 'We no longer believe because of what you told us - we have heard Him for ourselves'.

SUMMARY OF BISHOP MALCOLM'S ADDRESS AT THE DIOCESAN CELEBRATION - February 16th.

St Bede tells the story of the refusal of the British bishops to co-operate with St Augustine in the mission to the English at the very beginning of the 7th century. Why? Maybe it was bitterness at having been invaded. The Church today may feel invaded by the forces of secularism and the arrival of people of other faiths. Instead of feeling bitter and turning in on ourselves, we should follow the examples of Our Lady and St Paul.

Mary is the first believer in the New Covenant. She belonged to the community of those who relied on God for everything. She was open to the grace of God, and accepted dependence on others, not her own resources.

There were times when St Paul was rejected and had to draw attention to his record to show he was not a self-seeker. God's power is made perfect in Paul's weakness, which thus becomes a claim on God's strength. So the Church today is to rely on God's strength in our weakness and loss of resources.

Bishop Malcolm expressed a sense of new confidence in our believing together and growing interdependence. Our role is to "hand on truths, not opinions; principles, not judgements". The Church must not, at all costs, become a sect. A church is different from a sect in that it is not consumed with its own concerns, that it is open to the wider society. If we are to hand on our faith, we must engage with society. Catholicism is not a hobby, not a life-style choice, not a sort of spiritual Lego, a self-assembled New Age kit. It is a comprehensive approach to life, a wisdom.

"We cannot hand on our faith, without being our faith." As Fr Timothy Radcliffe OP asked at the 2003 Diocesan Assembly, we have to learn how we can have an identity that doesn't shut anybody out.

The Diocesan and the parish Pastoral Plans now change into "Handing on our Faith." A year from now, each deanery is to have a celebration of how we have handed on our faith in the year, and how we plan to do it in the next year.

Interreligious Conversion - should such conversions be sought? And, if so, why? Discussion at St Philip's Church, Evington Road on Monday 10 March from 10am to 4pm. Details on noticeboard.
