

AVE VERUM CORPUS

ONE of the most sublime pieces of music ever written is Mozart's 'Ave Verum Corpus', 'Hail, true body, born of the Virgin Mary'. It is very brief, less than fifty bars, in simple four-part harmony and with merely a string accompaniment; but it has an intensity of feeling and a depth of devotion that is unsurpassed, to my mind at least. The words are traditional, 14th century, and express the catholic belief that in the consecrated bread and wine in the Eucharist Christ is truly present in all his bodily reality, in the body 'that truly suffered, that was offered on the cross for our sake, and from whose pierced side blood and water flowed'. If you don't know Mozart's 'Ave Verum', try to get hold of a CD which includes it, usually with other short pieces of sacred music. And if you are like me, you will find yourself listening to it again and again, both for its prayerful words and for its heart-rending music.

It is the reality of Christ's bodily presence in the Eucharist that is emphasised; but though the stress may seem to be on the suffering and wounding of that body, it is not the dead Christ who is present, but the Risen Christ, the One who said: 'Do not be afraid; I am the first and the last, and the living one. I was dead, and see, I am alive for ever and ever; and I have the keys of Death and of Hades' (Apocalypse 1: 17-18).

It is also the reality of Jesus' body that the disciples needed to be assured of, in the Gospel story today. They had heard he was alive again, for they said 'the Lord has risen indeed and has appeared to Simon', and they had heard of the experience of the two disciples going to Emmaus. But they still found it nearly impossible to accept that it was the real Jesus who was present in the room with them. They were 'alarmed and frightened' even though he said 'Peace be with you' – like we do to one another at Mass. They thought they were seeing a ghost. But no, ghosts do not have flesh and bones, as he said; and he showed them the wounds on his hands and feet to emphasise the point. And then, to make them certain, he asked for something to eat and they gave him some grilled fish. Whoever heard of a ghost eating fish?

It took time for them to get minds round the reality of what they were seeing. And it takes us time, too, to deepen our belief that Jesus truly died, and is truly risen, in a real glorified human body that no longer has the limitations of our present mortality; that he is truly present with us, though still invisibly but really so, especially in the sacraments; and that he will share his risen glorified life with us.

STATUES – The statue of St Therese is now located on a plinth on the third pillar in the nave, on the left side (Wellington St). She is balanced on the right side by a new statue of St Anthony. Memorial plaques will be set up under both statues in memory of the loved ones of benefactors who made this possible. Other plinths are already set up. The idea is to balance St Patrick with St George, and also to honour St Michael (our 1st post-Reformation church in Leicester). That leaves one plinth empty – perhaps for a female saint like St Anne. Ideas, suggestions welcome.

The Dominican Pilgrimage to Walsingham is on Sunday 17 May. The coach will leave from the Wellington Street side of the church at 8am sharp, and the cost will be £15 (£10 for students). Please let Fr Peter know on 252 1512 if you would like to go. You will need to bring a packed lunch.

The Dominican Pilgrimage to Lourdes is from 7 to 14 August. If you would like to go, please ask for the forms which are kept in the sacristy. The cost for full board and flight is £665.
