

Marriage

THE first book of Sacred Scripture tells us of the origin of many things: musical instruments, cities, slavery, vine-growing. All these began after the Fall of man, to ease or exacerbate our human condition. Only one human thing do we find already established in Eden: marriage. This was made before sin ever came into the world, when our first parents walked with God and were unashamed.

Marriage was made 'from the beginning', as our Lord tells the Pharisees, when God cast the man into a deep sleep and formed Eve from his side 'to be a help like unto himself'. Its properties and laws are God-made, not man-made. Those people today who would 're-define' marriage might as well try to re-define water, or the air.

Christ, when he came on earth as man, sought out the work he had done in the beginning with the Father and the Holy Spirit. And as an old painting may recover its original, vivid colours under the skilled hand of a art restorer, so Christ's words returned marriage to its pristine state: a union until death of one man with one woman.

He also gave marriage a new and supernatural value. Between Christians, matrimony is a sacrament. Provided those who enter upon it are in a state of grace, they are sanctified simply by exchanging their vows in God's presence. As they go through life, they will also be offered the actual graces needed to fulfil the obligations of marriage, great and small.

Holy Scripture speaks in many places about these obligations. Here, for example, is St Paul: 'Husbands, love your wives, as Christ also loved the Church, and delivered himself up for her'. And again, 'Wives, be subject to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord'. Or again (though to all Christians), 'Outdo one another in showing honour'. All these inspired words form part of the New Testament, which can never grow old.

We pray, and rightly, for vocations to the priesthood and religious life. We should also pray, I believe, for 'vocations' to the sacrament of matrimony. The Bible shows us that prayer can produce marriages. In the Book of Tobit, 'the holy angel of the Lord, Raphael', is sent in answer to Sarah's prayer and makes a match between her and Tobias (Tob. 3). It's not just aspiring spouses or parents-in-law who should pray for happy unions. Without Christian marriage, there can be no Christian civilisation; and without Christian civilisation, the road to heaven for all of us becomes rougher and more drear.

So during October, the month of the rosary, spare a decade or even a whole chaplet for the intention of happy and holy marriages. Please pray in particular for those in this parish who are preparing to enter the marital state. Ask God to bless them with the three great 'goods' of marriage: children, mutual love and faithfulness, and the grace of the sacrament.

Roses. Blessed roses are given out at every Mass this Sunday, in honour of Our Lady of the Rosary. This is an ancient Dominican custom. Please take the roses to the sick and housebound, and to those who would be surprised by this grace from Our Lady.

Today's Gospel: What God has joined together let no one set asunder.

The Holy Cross Lay Dominican Fraternity will have one First Profession and two Admissions on Saturday 10 October at the 12:30pm Mass. The Fraternity will, of course, be delighted to welcome members of the usual congregation, and any others, who wish to join them for this very happy occasion. It is anticipated that the Mass will be extended by fifteen to twenty minutes.

Pulpit. A few of you have been asking questions about its purpose and location. The pulpit is for the proclamation of the Word of God, and its 'loftiness' has nothing to do with the person of the priest, but with the dignity of God's Word. Situated down the nave, it directs our attention to the middle of the congregation, an unmissable symbol of "the Word among us". The dynamic of the liturgy is not focussed on the sanctuary alone, but is something living and active among us. The difficulty in getting used to it is partly due to pews, which have become part of Christian worship only in more recent times. Pews of course turn congregations into passive spectators. The pulpit will help to stir everyone out of passivity. If you find the pulpit unsettling, well and good! You're meant to. The panels will hopefully bear images of Dominican saints (Order of Preachers and pulpit – it all makes sense!) so that it will always act as an instrument of preaching, even when not in use.

October: the month of the Rosary. Every day, Monday to Saturday, the rosary will be recited in church at 12noon, beginning with the Angelus. On Sundays the usual rosary group meets at 6pm. Please feel free to come at 12 on weekdays and join in.

All Saints Eve Music Festival – Saturday October 31st, from 7.30 - 11.00pm in the Holy Cross Centre. An 'open-mike' session with performances from Holy Cross Gospel Choir, Bella Acapella, WhoLaHoops? and many more..... Halloween fancy dress not essential but welcome – a prize for the best. Entrance £3 on the door (advance tickets - £2) to include pumpkin soup and a hot-dog.

One of our parishioners will be going to the Divine Mercy Shrine in Krakow in October. There will be an Intention Book available for all to write their intentions in near the Divine Mercy Icon in the church. The book will then be taken to the Divine Mercy Shrine. The sisters have a Mass every Thursday for the intentions. The recent day at Westminster Cathedral was a great success. We had a full coach and the cathedral was full too. There were over 1500 people from all over the country.

In June the Holy Cross-based Leicester SPUC branch submitted a detailed response to the public consultation on whether abortion adverts should be shown on TV. We were among 400 consultation respondents. As a result of the opposition the ASA has delayed its decision until Spring. We must continue to oppose a proposal which would give free rein to abortion providers such as FPA and Brook. They have money to spend on ads – pro-life charities don't. Please help us by signing the petition on the table by the Wellington Street entrance.

Last Saturday the Leicester SPUC branch (working with Leicester LIFE) held its first conference at St Thomas More Church on the subject of care towards the end of life. The event was hugely successful with inspirational speakers and a lively, well-turned out audience. Our events diary is already filling up. If you would like to be part of this young success story why not join us? Contact Sica on 0775 88 44 918 or Catherine on 07814 153560.

The next biannual Mass for Lesbian and Gay Catholics, families and friends will take place here on Saturday 17 October at 3pm. Pastoral provision is given by Holy Cross priory to be sensitive to the pastoral needs of homosexual Catholics. Nothing contrary to the Catholic faith is intended or promoted by such care, and indeed, such care is mandated by the Catechism.

Stop Press: 200 Club winners will be announced next week.
